Western Canadian Weed Control Conference

Lethbridge Experimental Station
Weekly letter.

The fifth meeting of the Western Canadian Weed Control Conference was held on November 27 and 28, 1951. Two members of the staff from the Lethbridge Experimental Station attended the meeting, taking part in the formal portion of the Conference, and in discussion of the various committees responsible for the drafting of weed control recommendations.

The basic recommendations for weed control in western Canada were aligned into little sag, result of the 1951 tests. The changes that are of most concern to the farmers of southern Alberta had to do with weed control in oats and flax.

The 1951 season was the first in which all weeded obtained uniform results in the oat tests. The general conclusion was reached that the oat is more susceptible to 2,4-D injury than wheat or barley, with a very susceptible stage extending from 15 days after emergence to 28 days after emergence of the oat plants. Because of this and previously mentioned facts, the Conference recommended that if an oat crop is to be treated with 2,4-D for weed control, the treatment should be made after the three leaf stage and before the crop is 6 inches tall (18 days after emergence), or after the crop is 12 inches tall (28 days after emergence) but before the seedlings or early root stage of growth.

The recommendations for the treatment of flax were not changed under the line of treatment is concerned. However, because of the greater tolerance of flax to the emulsifier than to the ester, it was recommended that the emulsifier type of 2,4-D be used for weed control in flax, except for very resistant types of weeds are present. For conditions as they exist in southern Alberta, where Russian Thistle is one of the most common weeds, the emulsifier type are favored as long as low dosage rates are applied.

During the Conference, numerous reports were given of tests made with a number of chemical compounds which are new in the weed control field.

To date, none of the compounds have proven superior to 2,4-D for weed control in the oat and most grain crops, but some show definite promise of usefulness for use on—in certain other crops, or for the control of specific weeds.

2,4-D. Continued testing of new chemicals at the Experiment Station and other research in this connection throughout the conference is necessary before any chemical can be recommended for use. We look forward to the possibility of use of two new recommended herbicides next fall.

Seed For Next Year's Crop
A Difficult Problem in Sight

A special meeting called by the Government of Saskatchewan last considered the matter of the germination of the seed which farmers will use for sowing this coming spring.

From first hand and well tested sources increasing conditions the germination of grain, particularly of oats, has been adversely affected.

Some farmers have been in port need that will germinate better than the stocks now held by farmers. It was decided that farmers should first test their seed and be tested for moisture.

If the moisture test is 10 per cent or below, indicating it may be suitable for seed spring.

A sample should be sent, accompanied by 75 cents, to the Plant Products Division in either Alberta, Saskatchewan or Manitoba, for an official germination test.

Or farmers should themselves make a germination test of their own grain which they intend to use for seed.

If the sample shows over 10 per cent moisture, which indicates it may not be suitable for sowing seed spring, then the farmer should write at once for advice either to the Provincial Department of Agriculture in the province or to the Field Husbandry Department of the Federal Government.

Under no circumstances should moisture, heated or applied grain be used for any purpose, and only dry seed should be treated with moisture compounds.

When finished, the trans-Canada highway will be 4,975 miles long.

Seed Growers Repayment
The Alberta Seed Growers' Association has announced a further repayment of capital reserves will be made to its members during December of this year. Fifty per cent of the capital reserves deducted from the 1941-42 crop are to be repaid to growers. This is the second series of cheques that the Alberta Seed Growers' Cooperative Limited has issued in repayment of capital reserves. The first series of cheques one year ago covered all reserves accumulated up to July 31, 1944.

The Alberta Seed Growers' Cooperative Limited hopes these cheques will provide an added enjoyment to the Christmas season to members who receive them.
In 1941 there were only 44 growers in all Western Canada. Thirty-six of these were in Quebec City.

Canadian Girls Find Houseboat Living Cheaper

MALDENHEAD, England.—For six smart girls from Ontario, a 40-foot motorized houseboat is the answer. This represents a solution to the high cost of living in London.

The Canadians, all in their early 20s, arrived in London two months ago. Because of war-torn conditions, they found it impossible to find a house in London. So they bought a houseboat, a weekly rent of just under $10, and a small boat.

"We were able to simply window rent out, and group, just 100 dollars a month, and we have a very good view of the river for nothing at all."

With an eye to business, however, the girls first thought was to find one in the mid-20s. But when they got there, they found it was not so easy to find one working in a local factory, helping to make things for soldiers.

With an average wage of 10p a week, "it's a wonderful way of getting to know people," said Linda, Toronto, who is now working in a local factory, helping to make things for soldiers.

First thing that struck the enterprising travellers was the difference in living standards. They thought it would be a good idea to get a full meal at a restaurant for the equivalent of $1.50—until they found out how long it took to make that much in London.

Lisa on the Thames has its troubles, too. Once the river rose too high, the girls had to leave. Linda, Toronto, who is now working in a local factory, helping to make things for soldiers.

The three-cabin cruiser is too small for more than one at a time to move around the river. Linda, Toronto, who is now working in a local factory, helping to make things for soldiers.

Sometimes the Thames is a little too busy to take on a houseboat. Linda, Toronto, who is now working in a local factory, helping to make things for soldiers.

The Garden Of Peace

People who are sometimes troubled by the world's problems find nothing about them because they say "What can I do?" The answer is to know the story of the Toronto Garden of Peace.

It is a garden, pulling out the weeds from among his flowers, preserving the delicate plants from the soil, and watching the colorful blossoms open in the summer. He thought that flowers of the world were dying, and he was not his garden, but a great international garden of peace.

In 1929 Dr. Moore went to a meeting of the Gardeners Association of North America. There, he thought, he would meet some of the people who would share his dream. And one day during the meetings he went up to the platform and made a speech.

"We who work in our garden," he said, "are the gardeners of peace. We are the great work of nature and we have learned to work with it. We can't help but see to it that we work with it. At a beginning we didn't know it, but now we do."

Believes Price Peak Reached

OTTAWA.—Drop in wholesale prices for the third consecutive month, followed by the Dominion Bank of Canada, has led some economists to the cautious conclusion that we have passed the worst point in inflation.

They describe the present trend as "mildly deflationary." They hope their price drop a little with the consumer there may be a bit of a price slump in 1952, possibly during the second quarter or a bit later.

The man-to-the-street, this side of the Queen's Hotel, says the price probably has been reached, but he is not so sure.

Shoppers Will Learn Uses Of Fibre Fabrics

NEW YORK.—It is estimated, verifiable or not, that the use of fibre fabrics will come to an upturn soon as tough fibres are made available to the public on the market today. A generalization on the changes were made.

But now we have clothing, up to the neck, and outdoor furniture, covers that are made of fibre. They are made of fibre, and they are made of fibre.

The woman who goes shopping in the winter months of getting the most for her shopping dollar, she is to be fully informed as to the specific advantages of each.

The man-made fibres are getting more and more wonderful—but they are arriving on the market so fast that most average shoppers are confused as to which is which and why.

Believes Price Peak Reached

OTTAWA.—Drop in wholesale prices for the third consecutive month, followed by the Dominion Bank of Canada, has led some economists to the cautious conclusion that we have passed the worst point in inflation.

They describe the present trend as "mildly deflationary." They hope their price drop a little with the consumer there may be a bit of a price slump in 1952, possibly during the second quarter or a bit later.

The man-to-the-street, this side of the Queen's Hotel, says the price probably has been reached, but he is not so sure.

The wholesale price index in the month of October was 134.1, down from 134.2 in September and 134.3 in August.

Both planes came off the secret list recently but details of their performance have not been revealed. The XB-1, a three-jet power house, can climb almost straight up. The Delta, looking like a flying wing, powered by one jet engine, is said to be one of the most maneuverable of all fighting aircraft.—Central Press Canadian.

NATO MEETINGS IN ROME BUILDING—Recently the members of the North Atlantic treaty organization met in Rome's "Pope Palace" for four days. The building was formerly known as "Pope Museum", and the former dictator's name can still be clearly seen inscribed on the chalkboard fronting the building. At the conference the army co-ordinating committee of NATO discussed what each member country can safely afford in economic contributions without impairing the economic structure of any nation.—Central Press Canadian.

RIVER CLAIMS TWO HOCKEY-PLAYING YOUNGSTERS—Richard Stewart, frozen with worry, breaks ice in search for his boys, Murray and Granville, who fell into the Indian river at Penbrooke, Ont. VENICE IS EVEN MORE WATERY THAN USUAL—Torrential rains and wind storms which flooded the canal city of Venice have enabled gondolas to ply their trade where they have never done before. A LITTLE HUMOR BRIGHTENS OIL DEADLOCK—After spending six weeks in U.S. discussing Anglo-Iranian oil deadlock with top Washington officials, Iranian premier, Mossadegh, was presented with, fittingly enough, a miniature oil well, just before he boarded plane from Washington for China. Both the premier (right), and Waiside Murray, former U.S. ambassador to Iran, were greatly amused by the incident. Mossadegh's parting words to U.S. newsmen indicated he is still "hopeful" that his country and Britain can settle their oil dispute.—Central Press Canadian.

STILL PREMIER—Leslie M. Frost, wearing a white Roman's helmet, waves to cheering crowds in his hometown of Lindsay, Ont., during a victory parade following his re-election in the Ontario general election. The Progressive Conservative leader saw his party win 79 of the 90 seats in the province.

'IRAN'S POSITION NO WORSE THAN THAT OF U.S.'—Mossadegh, Iran's Premier Mohammad Mossadegh, Hassan Pahlavi, at the Iranian embassy in Washington, told newsmen that his country will not stand for any economic or political pressure, no matter what its kind and "no matter what its color." He said Iran's economic situation is no better than that of Iran and declared, "we shall see who can bear up longer." The Iranian spokesman noted the United States had something but would wait until he had raised the petroleum problem on a friendly basis.

ONE PROBLEM TO SOLVE BEFORE SPACE FLIGHT—The pioneer rocket is hitting on all fours in Minneapolis Haroldo Bureau of St. Louis, Mo., where dreams are completely out of this world. Harold is holding here the plans and a model for a rocket he designed. He believes it should fly to the moon. The young engineer says he doesn't know much about that yet, but he "hopes" to get a chemistry set for Christmas, and many authorities who agreed Harold had something but would wait until he had raised the petroleum problem.—Central Press Canadian.

CHRISTMAS DAY

On Christmas Day we repeat the old familiar greeting that each year, in some mystic way rings fresh and true—"Merry Christmas." Like such words as "hello" and "good-by," there really isn't anything else to say that pulls at our heartstrings as do these old dear words. And so again we say—

Merry Christmas—to the littlest ones who skip downstairs in the gray dawn to explore their stockings and the wondrous tree and to look at Christmas with the special radiance of youth; who lead to the rest of us little glimmers of the real Christmas glamour.

Merry Christmas—to father who'll strain a point any day to give us all the things we want;
who probably works much too hard and yet keeps younger and more alert because of the responsibility of a family and the competition of business; who makes the gesture of host-telling all the fuss and feathers yet beams with affection and excitement.

Merry Christmas—to mother who really calls the tune for the holidays and does the planning and pulling together; who flits here and bustles radiantly for weeks ahead and undoubtedly has the least and busiest time of all.

Merry Christmas—to the dear us greetings and all gifts; most friends far and near who've sent especially do we cherish the greetings because even more than gifts they express the true spirit of Christmas.
